SUBJECT Admiral Turner's Book

BILL KURTIS: Admiral Stansfield Turner, the former Director of the CIA, is tangling with government censors over how much he can tell in a book he is writing. The CIA says three chapters of the book contain classified information which must be deleted. Turner says he will take the case to court if he has to. The book is about the problems of gathering intelligence in a democratic society.

While CIA Director, Turner sued a former agent for releasing sensitive information in a book that he wrote.
